

Big Brother Stars in 1984

"1984", a play about the future written by George Orwell, was presented November 9, 10, and 11. It was directed by Mr. Patrick Sheehy, aided by student directors Jackie Keith and Pat Bauer.

Winston, played by Dick McDermott and Julia, (Wendy Raun) fall in love, against all the party's rules. They must hide their thoughts or else be turned in by the thought police or the all-seeing Big Brother. With the help of O'Brien (Max Hahn) they rent an apartment in the prole section of town, where the people are not dominated by the party.

Their friend O'Brien turns them in for anti-party thoughts, and they both are re-indoctrinated into the party. They finally love Big Brother.
